

Out of the Box

Out of the Box uses a combination of comedy, sight gags and puppetry as it cleverly weaves together a number of different storylines that demonstrate the importance of friends.

Variety is without a doubt the key to this show's continuing success. There are stories about dinosaurs, Africa, a fractured fairytale, an Aesop's fable and the issue of what to be when you grow up. There are rod and glove puppets and a humanette, six-year-old James who hilariously explores his career options. The zany marionette cabaret finale is a memorable ending to this energetic performance.
