

ALL HANDS ON DRUMS

Curriculum Relevance: Music. Music participation.

No previous musical knowledge is needed to participate, just natural youthful enthusiasm and in no time at all Tom Harding will have your students working together and sounding great as they beat out great rhythms.

While totally enjoying playing music together, participants learn the benefits of co-operation and teamwork and discover the awesome sounds that can be achieved when small groups work together as parts of a larger ensemble.

All Hands on Drums is a great way to get a group of young people working together. It may be held during the school day or offered as an extra-curricular activity. All Hands on Drums is also ideal as an OOSH holiday activity, as a one off workshop or as a series of daily workshops spread over the holiday period.

Be aware, at the end of the workshop your students will be keen to perform.

Tom Harding has been performing and teaching music since 1997, first in the UK and currently in Australia. His charisma and enthusiastic approach to music and drumming in particular brings energy to the workshop that is infectious and immediately has everyone eager to participate. He has conducted his workshops around the world at numerous schools and festivals and for corporate clients such as Médecins Sans Frontières and the Cancer Council. He has even conducted music workshops for BBC TV.

As a performer Tom has performed with Samba Ninja at both the State of Origin and Bledisloe Cup. He is also the rhythm specialist on "Stay Tuned" on ABC TV.
