

Teacher Notes

Cyber Wiser showed how easy it is to misunderstand a situation. Someone may do something silly without being a silly person. Someone may do something that upsets you without meaning to.

We should all be able to apologise for the things we have done and we should all be able to accept someone's apology for doing something that has hurt us.

Social media

Listed below are ways that you can improve your privacy settings so that people can't bother you on the internet when using websites like Facebook or chat programs like Skype and Discord.

Privacy Settings

- Good websites and software programs should have privacy settings. Turn your privacy settings on so that only allowed friends can see you online.
- Change your timeline to private, that way only your friends can comment on your timeline and this won't allow bullies to make hurtful comments.
- Don't give out your password to anyone ever! Not even to friends. A good friend will never ever ask for your password – it is up to you to keep your password safe from others and a secret. The one exception is when setting up your account, your parents or guardians may insist that you give them access to your password to ensure that you are behaving responsibly online.
- Before you put anything online, take time to think and ask yourself the question “do I want everyone to see this comment or photograph?” Because even with your settings set to private so only your friends can see it – your friends may tell other people about what you posted.
- Never send a text or post anything online when you are angry.

In Cyber Wiser there are a number of strategies suggested to use when dealing with bullies. The main strategy is to Take Control. You can take control in many different ways.

From the list below, tick the things you could do to take control if you are being bullied and place an X beside the things you think are not taking control.

- Ignore the Bully
- Show the bully you are frightened by crying
- Calmly walk away and tell a teacher
- Don't show the bully you are frightened
- Sing loudly the words to the Australian National Anthem
- Calmly tell the bully to leave you alone or you are going to tell a teacher
- Get into an argument with the bully
- Run away as fast as you can, screaming as loudly as you can
